"No change in prices has been made here during the week, although the tendency East and at Manils is upward. It is not generally known and understood that the Hawaiians themselves get the benefit of the duty upon the Sugars imported from the Islands—that is to say, they get the equivalent of the Manila price upon the day of its agrival here, with the duty added thereto. From this it will be seen that our refiners have not as big a thing in the working of the Reciprocity Treaty as many have supposed. Even some of our Congressmen were of the opinion that Claus Spreckles got the full benefit of the duty, but he has none of it. During the past week we have been shown a sample of Beet Sugar granulated, made at the Aivarado Sugarie: quality good Al. It is " No change in prices has been made here during the made at the Aivarado Sugarie: quality good Al. It is probable that this and the Soquel Sugarie combined will turn out 5,000 berrels this year; the present high prices ruling will help them out amazingly. The Hay Refuery has run out of stock, and has stopped to clean up for the year, pending the arrival of fresh imports from the Islands and elsewhere." "A Paris cablegram, dated November 17th, has this to say about the French best crop: The best crop is even worse than was anticipated, and the price of Sugar has sensibly risen. Many refineries have come to a standatill, and nearly all are likely to terminate their operations by the end of December. The quality of the crop is inferior,

THE PACIFIC Commercial Advertiser.

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 6. On the fourth page of to-day's paper we print " International Reciprocity," delivered on Thursday, Nov. 27th, the occasion being the American Thanksgiving. The discourse, as we observed that Hawaiian in sacks was quoted according to quality; last week, was an able and interesting one, illustrating the beneficial effects in this age of the world of Reciprocity in Commerce, Science, Literature and Christianity. It was in the elucidation of the latter subdivision of his subject-to which more time was devoted than to either of the other three-that a portion at least of the audience could not agree with the speaker. We refer, of course, to his discussion of the " Chinese Queswhich to the Hawaiians is rapidly assuming the proportions of a question of life and death.

The speaker inquired, towards the close of the discourse, " Would not the perpetuity of Hawaiian rule be more secure with a few thousands of immigrants from China, coming with their simple habits and agricultural propensities and obedience to law, inherited from a remote antiquity, and no political aspirations, rather than with an equal Hewalian Rice is quoted in San Francisco at 6% to 6% c; number coming from the opposite shores with their reckless habits and desires for speedy fortunes?" Without pausing here to comment on the invidious comparison made between the character of American citizens-the Reverend gentleman's own countrymen-and that of Chinese coolies, we may remark, that in point of fact there is not the remotest probability that there will ever be thousands of the former immigrating to these Islands to jeopardise the perpetuity of Hawaiian rule; tat experience and common sense do teach us that unless preventive measures are soon adopted, many thousands of Chinese will in a few years swarm over these Islands; and once in the majority, Hawaiian rule and the Hawaiian race itself will speedily disappear. Once having a numerical superiority in the country, the Chinaman, " with his simple habits and agricultural propensities," will soon convince his quondam friends and apologists that he is sufficiently astute to comprehend that he is master of the situation.

We are told that " Our Island Kingdom occupies a most advantageous outpost for carrying forward this noble undertaking of a world's evangelization." We apprehend that what is meant by this sentence is, not that we are to send missionaries from these Islands to China, but that by the Chinese coming here we shall have the opportunity of converting them to Christianity. And here, with all due deference to the opinions of those of our readers who expect great things from the lately organized Chinese Christian Church of Honolulu, and after summoning all the " Heaven-born charity " that is vouchsafed us -we have to confess that our belief in the reality of Chinese conversions is very shaky. We will qualify the last remark by saying that we think the sincere converts are few and far between. We are reminded of the remark of a returned missionary from China, as reported resuccessful, replied-" Sir, you can have as consciences. In this connection we quote from a recent issue of the S. F. Call.

"Those who have even a passing acquaintance moral power, to which they acknowledge a responsibility. This has time and again been observed in our Courts of Justice. If a suit is on perfect form of recreative exercise." trial, in which the plaintiff and defendant are rivals, belonging to separate companies, and fifty witnesses give testimony on each side, in every instance there will be a conflict. Each man will testi-home. The following are his remarks: No people, it has been said, has ever been found which did not profess some kind of religion. The most savage and the most civilized are alike found searching out the same essential facts connected with their origin and destiny. The Chinese have their Deides also; but it would be more difficult than most people imagine to say in just what their religion consists. The teachings of Confucius form the basis of their national jurisprudence; but it can hardly be called a religion, since it does not inculcate the worship of any God. Their Taouist faith is essentially an undeveloped species of rationalism. Buddhism is evidently the religion of the masses in the interior provinces; but the generally low character of its priesthood, and the dilapidated condition of its temples, tell an impressive story of the growing indifference of the educated and influential classes." A writer in the Friend for the present month, over the signature of " H. D.," makes the following pertinent inquiries:

" Now comes the question, what is to be the effect of such a large inflox of heathenism on these Islands, where Christianity has been so recently established? Which way is the tide of influence to turn? It Christians here can bring the power of religion to bear upon them so as to influence them in the right direction, all will be well. If not, what is to become of our Sabbath and our religious institutions? "

What, indeed! This writer, however, in another part of his communication displays a remarkable ignorance of the real character of the large majority of the Chinese who come here as immigrants. He says: " Having been brought up in their own country under the parental restraints taught by Confucius, they have continued to be from age to age a moral people." The fact is that the common people of China know as much about Confucius and his teachings as do the Zulus of Africa. Such studies are confined to the literati, who constitute the aristocracy and who are the actual rulers of China. As to their morality-" H. D." most have lived in a very circumscribed sphere not to have known that the influence of the Chinese upon the Hawaiian people has generally been of a most demoralizing character.

Returning briefly to the consideration of the sermon-we find this remark : " Not a few, even among good Christian citizens, follow in the wake For San Francisco, per Ella, Dec 4—T McNulty, Peter Woods. W Stinger, G Schanks.

of the popular feeling on this subject which it will be wise for the Ministry to heed. Upon no one subject, of equal importance, is so little attention bestowed in these days as that of physical culture. And we may add, that this neglect of the body is particularly apparent in this city. Our business and professional men generally, who are steadily occupied at sedentary work during stated hours of the day-and sometimes their zeal for work goes beyond any particular hours-will, sooner or later, understand that physical health cannot long be maintained Box Barriagr, wife of John A. Duncan, aged 28 years. A relieved by exercise. The physical system must tender and watchful mother, a faithful and devoted wife, and a sincere Christian. Our loss is her gain. receive its proper share of attention, or the in- | de dividual will surely suffer the consequences in impaired health and a shortened life. A man may eat and drink heartily every day, and sit or stand in his office during business hours doing brain work, and then ride home to sit or lounge and read until bed-time; but let him remember that the body must have its share of work, or eventually it will become diseased and die. This imperative law of nature. Should the stomach refuse to work within ten minutes after a hearty dinner, the man would die in convuln a few hours, or cholera or cramp would him. Should the pores of the skin go on a strike," he would shortly be consuming with And if the liver should become mulish, appetite would disappear, food would be loathed, torturing pains would invade the small of the back, and the head would ache to bursting. To keep the complicated machinery of the human body in order during a life-time, physical exercise is absolutely necessary. No one can expect to realize good health, either in mind or body, while habitually neglecting this. As forcibly stated by a recent writer on this subject, Every half hour of earnest physical exercise; every invigorating taste of pure and stimulating air; every brief period of amusement, which no counting-room care is permitted to mar, has its actual financial value. Sound sleep, good digestion and hard muscles qualify for sustained mental exertion. To allot half an hour daily to some systematic course of athletic exercise-such as rapid walking or the dumb-bells-is possible to even the most devoted office-worker. With due persistency it will produce results that will richly compensate for the time devoted. Englishmen and Germans are noted for then sturdy carriage, generally large frames, strength and habitual health. With the English, this is in a great degree the result of the national custom of taking long walks-" constitutionals"-in the open air: while the Germans from youth are frequenters of the gymnasium. All classes of our readers whose daily work is indoors-whether males or females-will find that by taking a daily walk their general health will be vastly improved. Not a mere saunter around a square, but a brisk walk half-way to the Pali and back, or out to Waikiki, or to Manoa, or to Kalihi or Palama,

We cannot better close this brief reference to physical culture than by quoting a few sentences from " Advice to Professional Men," which we find in a recent number of the Fortnightly Re-

"To professional men, men of business, and inless confinement, exercise is, of course, the condition sine qua non of the recreation to be recommended. This fact is so obvious that I need not dwell upon it further than to make one remark. This is to warn all such persons that their feelings are no safe guide as to the amount of muscular exercise that is requisite for maintaining full and sustained health. By habitual neglect of sufficient exercise the system may and does accommodate itself to such neglect; so that not only may the desire for exercise cease to be a fair measure of its need, but positive exhaustion may sary to long continuance of sound health. However strong and well, therefore, a man may feel notwithstanding his neglect of exercise, he ought to remember that he is playing a most dangerous game, and that sooner or later his sin will find him out—either in the form of dyspepsis, liver, kidney, or other discently in an English newspaper, who on being ease, which so surely creep upon the offender against naked if the work of converting the Chinese was the amount of exercise that a healthy man ought to take without fatigue is at the least that which many Chinese converts as you will pay for."
